Luxembourg and China celebrated wealth and good fortune for the Chinese new year that started in February with a reception in Kirchberg. China's ambassador to the Grand Duchy, Zeng Xianqi, invited guests to view an exhibit from the Imperial Palace in Beijing featuring reproductions of calligraphy and painting from the Tang, Song, Yuan, Ming and Qing dynasties, which was displayed at the Luxembourg Chamber of Commerce.

Luxembourg's finance minister, Pierre Gramegna, encouraged participants to consider travelling to Hong Kong for events such as the Asia Financial Forum.

Linda Lai noted the Hong Kong trade office marks its 50th anniversary in Europe this year. Then Mikkel Strørup addressed the crowd in Luxembourgish, Chinese and English to say that Chinalux had just reached its 100th member.

Attendees Simone Martin and Wendy Feng told Delano the event was a smashing success with opportunities to meet international residents, many of whom are fluent in both Chinese and Luxembourgish. <
